

ABSTRACT

Methods and systems of processing an image. One embodiment includes applying a controlled, adaptive histogram equalization technique to improve the quality of an image. Another embodiment may include classifying an image. Both embodiments may use a concentration ratio of an image or portions thereof.